

DEATH IN SERVICE

INFORMATION SHEET

The death of a civil servant while employed in the Civil Service is referred to as a Death-in-Service. There are a number of practical issues for next-of-kin to consider in relation to the Death-in-Service process. This information sheet aims to provide practical guidance and to signpost towards other relevant sources of information.

Note: This information sheet is only a guide. Specific details should be sought from the relevant bodies.

Possible Financial Entitlements

The employing department/office should be notified of the officer's death. Any entitlements due will be processed by the Civil Service HR Shared Services Centre, (PeoplePoint). They will contact the next-of-kin with relevant details and documentation requirements www.peoplepoint.gov.ie

Occupational Benefits

1) Civil Service Pension Scheme (Pre 2013 staff)

- Pensions – In the case of a married officer or civil partner who dies in service and who was a member of the Spouses' and Children's Contributory Pension Scheme, the surviving spouse/partner and eligible children are entitled to a pension. (note: the children's parents do not have to be married)
- Pension Entitlements – This may include one month's salary for the first month following the death of the officer. Thereafter spouses' and children's pensions will be payable. This/these pension(s) will be based on the deceased officer's potential service to age 65. For further information see the website of The Irish Civil Service Pensions Information Centre www.cspensions.gov.ie
- Death Gratuity – On production of a Grant of Probate (where a Will existed) or otherwise Letters of Administration (see overleaf), a death gratuity is payable to the officer's legal personal representative. This is a lump sum calculated on the greater of:
 - One year's pensionable remuneration (at the rate applicable at the officer's death); or
 - the amount of lump sum that would've been payable had the officer retired due to ill-health at the date of death, subject to a maximum of 1 ½ times the officer's pensionable remuneration at the date of death.
- Single Public Service Pension Scheme (2013)
Staff recruited from 2013 are members of the Single Public Service Pension Scheme and have different benefit entitlements. Further information on that Scheme can be found at www.singlepensionscheme.gov.ie

Legal Considerations

Grant of Probate* - This is a formal legal process authorising a person to manage a deceased person's estate which may include, land, property, money etc. owned by the deceased at the date of death. A Grant of Probate is extracted where a person dies leaving a Will. The deceased's assets are administered by an Executor.

Letters of Administration are extracted where a person dies 'intestate' (without having made a will). The deceased's assets are dealt with by an Administrator.

Application for the Grant of Probate/Letters of Administration can be made through a solicitor or, the Executor/Executrix/Administrator can apply directly themselves.

Other Considerations

- Trade Union – If the deceased officer was a member of a trade union, a mortality benefit may be available. Contact the relevant union for further information.
- Private Health Insurance – Spouses and civil partners may have the option to stay in the deceased officer's health insurance scheme when receiving their pension. Contact insurance provider for details.
- Credit Union – If the officer was a member of a credit union there may be death benefits available. Contact the credit union directly.
- Additional Voluntary Contributions (AVC) Life assurance plans. The deceased officer may have paid in to a private plan which pays out a death benefit.
- Public Service Friendly Society – If the deceased officer was a member of this benevolent fund there may be financial support available if funeral costs would cause hardship.
- Payslip - If a hardcopy of the deceased's payslip is not available, contact the deceased officer's former employing department.

Other Matters to Consider

- Life assurance policies - contact insurers
- Mortgage – contact provider
- Bank, Building Society and Post Office Accounts –Where accounts are solely in the deceased name they will need to be frozen and eventually closed. If they are joint accounts, they will need to be changed into a single name. Each financial body will advise as to its own procedure.
- Car Insurance and Motor Tax – relevant bodies need to be informed of the death
- Credit card - companies should be notified and cards cancelled
- House insurance policies - may need to be updated
- Utility providers – need to be contacted to change names on accounts e.g. gas, electricity
